Eisenhower Receiving Heart Drug

WASHINGTON (AP) — Doctors reported Wednesday that a new heart drug has appeared to be effective with former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, but his condition remains critical.

The drug is a synthetic substance called lidocaine, which is under extensive clinical investigation for use in managing certain disturbances in heart rhythm.

These disturbances include ventricular fibrillation, or very rapid uncoordinated contractions, which have threatened the 77-year-old Eisenhower's life in his current heart attack, the seventh he has suffered.

Doctors at Walter Reed Army Hospital did not say how long they had been administering the drug. They disclosed they had been using it after issuing a medical bulletin at 10 a.m. saying:

"Gen. Eisenhower spent a very comfortable night and his spirits remain excellent. The trend toward a decrease in the frequency of cardiac irregularities and episodes of rapid heart action indicated in last night's bulletin, has continued throughout the night.

"While the physicians believe this is an encouraging sign, they still view the general's condition as critical."

In a statement supplementing their medical bulletin, they said that lidocaine "has appeared to be effective and continues to be used."

Lidocaine has been used as a local anesthetic in dentistry and surgery and now is under extensive investigation for use in certain heart conditions. It is related chemically to novocain, but is considered more powerful.

Lidocaine has not yet been approved by the Federal Food and Drug Administration for general use in cardiac conditions.

Doctors said another drug, bretylium tosylate, had been tried previously, but proved ineffective in Eisenhower's case. This drug also is still under clinical investigation for use in managing certain disturbances in heart rhythm and has yet to be approved by the FDA for general use for that purpose.

A researcher at the National Heart Institute said that the general tone of scientific reports so far on its use against disturbed rhythms is that "it has been very effective when used properly, and most effective when used early in the course of the cardiac problem."

WCDA Receives $1,250 State Grant

Mail Embargo To Canada Lifted

The Warren Post Office has been notified that effective immediately the embargo on the acceptance of mail addressed to Canada has been lifted, according to Postmaster Frank A. Fago.

With the restoration of normal mail service, all classes of mail are now being accepted for delivery in the Canadian provinces. This includes prints, newspapers, magazines, and samples added Postmaster Fago.

'Back to School' Supplement Herald Return to Three R's

There's no way to avoid it—going back to school. Just as there has always been a special "back to school" issue in the local newspapers, in the next few days the Warren Post will have a special "back to school" supplement. It will contain a variety of items, including a list of schools, a list of teachers, and a list of students. It will also contain a variety of other items, including a list of books, a list of supplies, and a list of activities. It will be a comprehensive guide to the start of the school year.

GALA DAYS QUEEN

Sandy Waters, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Waters of Garland, Wednesday was crowned queen of the Garland Gala Days festivities. The celebration, sponsored by the Garland Volunteer Fire Department, will be climaxed Saturday with a parade. Sandy's court consists of Norma Vanderhoof, first runnerup; Dixie Myers, second runnerup; and Peggy Taydas, third runnerup. Dr. David K. Rice was master of ceremonies for the evening. VC Resume Shelling Downtown Saigon

SAIGON (AP) — Enemy gunners slammed rockets into downtown Saigon early Thursday, resuming their shelling of the capital after a two-month lapse. One round smashed into the National Assembly building.

The first barrage of about 15 rounds struck at 4:45 a.m., sending shells into the heart of the capital in areas ranging from near Independence Palace to the riverfront.

Twenty minutes later four or five rounds landed.

A round that hit a roof turret of the assembly building on Lam Son square sent pieces of roofing tin through the air with broken glass and chunks of metal flashing. Debris littered streets between the nearby Caravelle and Continental hotels.

There was no one at the parliament building except caretakers and surrounding police guards. Police said no one was hurt.

The last shelling of Saigon, continuing for weeks, ended June 21. The cessation of attacks led to speculation that enemy forces were deliberately moving toward a de-escalation of the war in an effort to influence Paris peace talks.

On Wednesday bitter fighting erupted northwest of Saigon. A U.S. armored column trying to open an important supply road was forced to retreat under withering machine-gun and rocket fire.

Personnel carriers of the 25th Infantry Division have tried for four days to open a 20-mile stretch of road between Tay Ninh City and a brigade base camp at Dau Tieng. It is a prime infiltration route from Cambodia, and North Vietnamese regulars have held it since heavy fighting began in Tay Ninh Province Sunday.

Associated Press photographer Henri Huet reported that the U.S. column traveled only four miles outside Dau Tieng when the enemy opened up with rockets and machine guns.

U.S. spokesmen said 182 enemy were killed in the ensuing two-hour fire fight 45 miles northwest of Saigon.

Kennedy Asks Unconditional Halt to Bombing in Vietnam

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D. Mass., breaking a 10-week silence, called Wednesday for an unconditional halt to the bombing of North Vietnam as part of a four-point program to end the Vietnam War.

He described the war as "the tragedy of our generation", and called for withdrawal of American troops and negotiation with Hanoi without regard for the desires of the South Vietnamese government.

In his first political speech since the assassination of his brother, Robert, in June, Kennedy thanked those who have suggested he should retire "for safety's sake."

Kennedy said American hopes to help the South Vietnamese help themselves have been buried "by the overwhelming incompetence and corruption of our South Vietnamese ally."

Addressing a luncheon sponsored by the Worcester Area Chamber of Commerce at Holy Cross College, Kennedy told the audience of about 1,200 that the United States should institute a four-point program for an end to the Vietnam War:

1. "To end unconditionally all bombing of North Vietnam;
2. "To then negotiate with Hanoi mutual withdrawal from South Vietnam of all foreign forces, both Allied and North Vietnamese;
3. "To accompany this withdrawal with whatever help we can give to the South Vietnamese in the building of a viable political, economic and legal structure that will not promptly collapse upon our departure;
4. "To demonstrate to both Hanoi and Saigon the sincerity of our intentions by significantly decreasing this year the level of our military activity and military personnel in the South."

Soviet Invasion Forces Seize Czech Leaders

PRAGUE (AP) — Soviet invasion forces seized Communist party chief Alexander Dubcek and other reformist leaders Wednesday night and sped them off to an unknown destination. A Prague broadcast reported, troops also entered the parliament building as the assembly sat in session.

But 24 hours after their military take over of Czechoslovakia, the Soviets appeared to be having trouble setting up a political regime that would reverse the Dubcek liberalization movement and follow the old Kremlin line.

The Russians and their allies moved more troops into Czechoslovakia from Poland as sporadic clashes broke out between civilians and the invaders. At least 23 persons, including some Soviet soldiers, were reported killed since the invasion began late Tuesday night.

Bursts of heavy machinegun fire and small arms fire continued in Prague Wednesday night.

Radio stations broadcasting messages in support of Dubcek were still on the air. Soviet and other foreign forces had occupied all regular broadcast installations and cut wires in them.

Prague radio was seized, but continued to broadcast under that name from a clandestine site. The Czechoslovak news agency Ceteza—CTK—reported at 11:30 p.m. its offices had just been occupied by foreign troops and "at this moment the free news activity of Ceteza is ending."

In one broadcast, President Ludvik Svoboda declared he had done "everything" Wednesday to negotiate a solution and hoped that one could be reached Thursday.

A broadcast said Dubcek, National Assembly President Joseph Sukovsky, Joseph Spacek and Frantisek Kriegel, president members, were taken by Soviet soldiers from the Central Committee building where they had been restricted all day.

Premier Oldrich Cernik was seized earlier, but Svoboda in his broadcast indicated he expected no harm to come to the premier.

Party Secretary Cestimir Cilik's contentions.

sar was arrested in the morning. As the impact of the military coup shook the world there were these developments:

— In New York, U.N. Secretary-General U Thant denounced the invasion as a blow to world order. Later, the Security Council met in emergency session and voted to hold a formal debate on the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia.

UN Votes to Debate Invasion of Czechs

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Sweeping aside Soviet objections, the U.N. Security Council in emergency session voted Wednesday night to launch formal debate on the Soviet-led armed invasion of Czechoslovakia.

In bitter debate that mirrored increasing East-West tension, U.S. Ambassador George W. Ball and Soviet Ambassador Jacob Malik locked horns on whether the council should put the question on its agenda.

Malik contended that the council had no business to consider the matter. He said the Soviet Union and its Warsaw Pact allies acted "for the consolidation and internal peace and security" of Czechoslovakia.

Ball retorted that this was a fraud, and urged the council to proceed with the task of airing fully all aspects of the invasion.

Earlier, Secretary-General U Thant denounced the Soviet invasion as a serious blow to world peace and a grave setback to East-West relations.

The debate on whether the council should put the question on the agenda lasted almost two hours.

The vote was 13 in favor and two opposed—the Soviet Union and Hungary.

The Soviet delegate insisted that the Soviet Union sent troops into Czechoslovakia "on the basis of a request by the government of that state."

Malik claimed he had "irrefutable evidence" that what he called the "internal reaction" in Czechoslovakia had "ties with the outside world, with those who are interested in pulling Czechoslovakia out of the system of Communist states."

Ball quickly challenged Malik's contentions.

"There was no Western conspiracy against Communist rule in Czechoslovakia," Ball said.

"There was no Czechoslovakian government request to the Soviet Union and its allies to interfere in its internal affairs."

"There was no request, as Moscow would have the world believe, to install a puppet regime in the capital of Masaryk, Benes, and Dubcek."

Talks Recess, Stalemated, Until Wed.

PARIS (AP) — United States and North Vietnamese representatives accused each other Wednesday of distorting basic facts and the 18th session of the Paris peace talks broke up without either side budging from its position.

U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman said, "The war in Vietnam began and continues today because your government seeks to impose its will upon the people of South Vietnam by force and terror."

North Vietnamese Ambassador Xuan Thuy replied that the United States is the aggressor and wants to establish neocolonialism in Vietnam.

Harriman continued to press for a reciprocal gesture of de-escalation to match President Johnson's halt in bombing north of the 20th Parallel. Xuan Thuy reiterated his demands that the United States unconditionally stop all bombing and other acts of war over the whole of North Vietnam.

Both sides agreed to meet again next Wednesday.

Area Art Collector Robbed; Value Totals $1.3 Million

BRADFORD, Pa. (AP) — Burglars broke into the country home of art collector T. Edward Hanley early Wednesday and stole 16 works of art valued at $1,394,000 by his wife.

The two most valuable pieces of art were a 1901 Pablo Picasso painting entitled "Moulin Rouge" and valued at $500,000, and a 1906 watercolor by Cezanne valued at $450,000.

The other pieces — which included works by Renoir, Boucher, Latour, Rodin, Degas, Goya and Modigliani — were valued at from $75 to $50,000.

The works of art, which included paintings, drawings and bronze statuary, were among 1,000 pieces collected by Hanley, descendant of a Bradford oil and brick family, over 45 years.

State police said the thieves got into the house by cutting a screen on a window that let them into a kitchen. They forced a latch on a door and entered the rooms where the art objects were hung.

All of the pieces were on the first floor, police said.

Police said Hanley, 75, and an unidentified housekeeper were asleep in second floor bedrooms when the burglary occurred. They said they could not fix a time for the burglary, but believed it was in the early morning.

Hanley's wife, Tullah, a former Egyptian dancer, was in New York on a business trip when the burglary occurred. She flew back to Bradford.

Hanley's home is just a few miles outside of this Northwest Pennsylvania community near the Pennsylvania-New York state line. It lies several hundred yards off Pennsylvania 219 and is surrounded by thick pine trees and shrubbery.

Nixon Wins Support From Rocky and Lindsay

NEW YORK (AP) — Richard M. Nixon won pledges of full support Wednesday from Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and Mayor John V. Lindsay, the New York Republicans he wants to help him win the urban vote in his presidential campaign.

Standing beside the Republican presidential nominee on the steps of Gracie Mansion, the mayor's residence, Lindsay said, "I am supporting this ticket."

Lindsay said he intended to make "perhaps four trips" outside of New York City campaigning for Nixon.

Earlier, Rockefeller, who unsuccessfully challenged Nixon for the GOP nomination, said he would speak for the candidate in other states and take charge of the GOP campaign in New York State.

Rockefeller and Nixon met in the presidential candidate's

Lindsay and Rockefeller are favorites of the party's liberal wing and their offer to stump for the ticket could be a big help for Nixon carrying the populous states he says he needs to win the presidency.

In a joint statement, Lindsay and Nixon said: "We recognize that our views of national policy are not entirely in accord."

"It is not our intention to ignore or suppress any differences between us. But the mayor or believes that only a new administration, led by Richard Nixon and committed to fresh and progressive approaches, can bring the change which our nation seeks."

Nixon and Rockefeller joined each other in a statement declaring they are "united in the conviction that the progressive spirit of the Republican platform clearly points the path" to a GOP victory in November.

—In Washington, President Johnson denounced as "patently contrived" a Soviet claim the invasion was in answer to appeals from Czechoslovak leaders for help in preserving communism. Johnson urged the Soviet-led invaders to withdraw their troops.

The Czechoslovak news agency CTK said occupation soldiers of unspecified nationality entered the building of the National Assembly—parliament—in mid-evening, but the deputies continued in session.

The parliament earlier had approved a proclamation demanding that the foreign armies withdraw.

Broadcasts said seven persons were killed in fighting around Prague radio; six in Liberec, 55 miles northeast of Prague, and 10 in the east Slovak town of Kosice.

Some of the dead in Kosice included Soviet soldiers killed when a tank was set afire by a Molotov cocktail, a broadcast said.

The incidents occurred despite the government's instruction to the populace not to resist the invading forces of the Soviet Union, Poland, East Germany, Hungary and Bulgaria.

CTK said about 180 persons were wounded in the capital.

A 27-year-old motorcyclist was crushed to death, reportedly by the steel treads of a Russian tank.

A dispatch from Kosice, in southeast Slovakia, said Russian troops passing through that city fired on a crowd, killing a youth, 17, and wounding about 20 persons.

Swiss diplomats said Soviet units fired all day at Hradecany Castle, the seat of President Ludvik Svoboda's government, not far from the Swiss Embassy. They reported bullets caused some damage to the embassy's residential section, but no one inside was hurt.

A Soviet armored crew rammed through a barricade erected on Vavelskve Namesti, Prague's main square, by citizenry protesting the invasion.

Russian troops were reported to have fired on houses in streets behind the National Museum, on one side of the square. Flames from a burning tank set fire to houses in the Vinohrady district of the capital.

Failing to gain all the concessions they wished in the Cerna and Bratislava conferences July 29-Aug. 3, the Kremlin and its orthodox allies apparently had decided to force Prague's Communist leadership, under reformist Alexander Dubcek, back into the hard-line path. This was a course that Stalin avoided when Yugoslavia strayed away in 1948.

Chautauqua Democrats

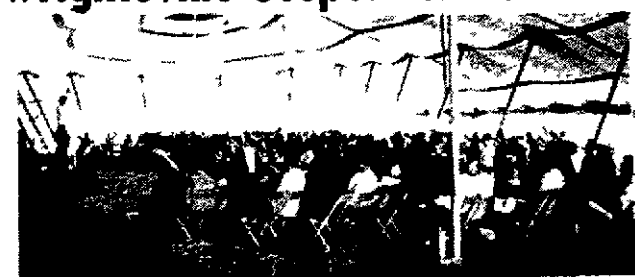

Support HHH

MAYVILLE, N. Y.—Chautauqua County Democratic Chairman George L. Ritter said Wednesday that the county Democratic committee has voted to support the candidacy of Hubert H. Humphrey for president. He noted the Democratic executive committee voted at its meeting last Saturday to recommend a resolution calling for the entire Democratic committee to support Humphrey's candidacy.

The Democratic chairman told his committee that minority groups from New York State will have 27 delegate votes at the Democratic National Convention in Chicago next week. "This compares with a grand total of 26 minority group delegates for the entire Republican National Convention held in Miami Beach two weeks ago," he said.

The Democrats also discussed their upcoming steak fry this Sunday at the Falconer Rod and Gun Club on Buffalo st., ext. Ritter noted that tickets for the annual event are still available for $5 per person from any Democratic committeeman. The committee to fill vacancies submitted nine names for Democratic committeemen from various parts of the county including four from Jamestown. The motion to accept the appointments was unanimously approved.

McCarthy Forces Say Poll Shows Humphrey Can't Win

CHICAGO (AP) — Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy's convention forces said Wednesday a new public opinion poll shows Hubert H. Humphrey can't win the White House — but the vice president's camp disputed the survey and claimed mounting strength in the drive for the Democratic presidential nomination.

The political arguments raged on in the ballrooms of the vast Conrad Hilton Hotel — but their impact was dwarfed by crisis in eastern Europe, a Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia.

That outbreak could only render more difficult the task of Democrats critical of the war in Vietnam, and McCarthy is the chief candidate among them.

Sen. Ralph J. Yarborough of Texas, who supports McCarthy, went so far as to guess that the crisis raised a possibility President Johnson might re-enter the presidential race.

"If Vice President Humphrey doesn't get it on the first ballot," said Yarborough, "I would think that would be a very strong probability."

Johnson himself was in Washington, denouncing the invasion of Czechoslovakia as tragic and

'Gala Days' In Garland In Full Swing

The Garland "Gala Days" were officially opened last night before a large and lively crowd by County Commissioner Dr. David Rice.

The first event of the festival was the crowning of Miss Sandra Waters as this year's "Gala Days" queen by the 1967 queen, Miss Debbie Bonnar. The queen was presented with a bouquet of red roses. Norma Vanderhoff, Peggy Taydus and Dixie Myers, members of the royal court, received wrist corsages.

The "Gala Days" Committee gave gifts of money, ride tickets and jewelry to the queen and her court and has invited them to dinner at the Deer Head Inn on Thursday.

The most unusual sight at the "Gala Days" is the smashing of the Grand Valley Fire Dept. automobile with sledges. Anyone who buys a ticket in the Grand Valley raffle is awarded the privilege of swinging at the car for free.

The main attraction at the "Gala Days" tomorrow is the "Hillbilly Ballgame" at 7 p. m. Last summer, the Hillbillies played the Irvine Girls Softball Team. The visiting team this year has so far been kept secret.

contrived. "The Soviet Union and its allies have invaded a defenseless country to stamp a resurgence of ordinary human freedom," the President said.

McCarthy forces in Chicago based their political brief for the day on a Gallup Poll showing Republican presidential nominee Richard M. Nixon with a wide lead over Humphrey.

"The vice president is simply not electable," said Patrick J. Lucey, a McCarthy spokesman. The poll showed Nixon holding a 16-point lead over Humphrey. One month ago, Nixon held a two-point edge.

But the Gallup survey also showed the Republican nominee five percentage points ahead of McCarthy.

Lucey said Humphrey had suffered "the biggest drop of any candidate in the polls this year."

Face Charges For Theft of Car

Two youths were returned to Warren County Wednesday from Jamestown, N.Y., to face charges in the theft of an automobile from near Youngsville. The suspects, identified as Samuel A. Thomas, 17, Clarendon, and Lloyd Proctor, 17, Sugar Grove, were apprehended earlier in the day by police in the town of Busti shortly after the theft occurred.

Thomas and Proctor were free on bail pending court action on charges stemming from the theft of another auto in Youngsville a week ago.

As Hostages Are Released

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Five inmates were killed when authorities blasted through thick walls of the Ohio Penitentiary Wednesday afternoon and released nine guards held hostage nearly 30 hours.

Warden Marion J. Kolooski said the death toll "may go to six."

None of the guards was injured. They were greeted by cheers as they emerged from behind the walls.

The inmates had threatened to burn their hostages to death using one-half gallon of gasoline and 40 ounces of lighter fluid if demands were not met. The demands included amnesty for the inmates holding the guards hostage, amnesty for prisoners charged in the June 24 rioting and improvement of prison conditions.

Kolooski had granted some of the demands Tuesday night. At least three of the nine hostages are sure the use of dynamite — which Kolooski called "a calculated risk that paid off" — saved their lives.

One was being held at knife-point by an inmate when the first blast occurred. The force of the explosion knocked the prisoner against a wall. Two other hostages heard inmates running toward them yelling, "we're going to burn the bastards." An explosion floored the rebels.

Several convicts were injured along with three city policemen as National Guardsmen, police and state patrolmen stormed the cell blocks where prisoners had barricaded themselves.

Kolooski said five inmates were shot. Another was believed critically injured when a wall fell on him. He was dug out of the rubble.

To Printer's Home

George Porter, a former employee of the Times-Mirror composing room and currently a patient at Warren General Hospital, will be transferred on Monday to L.T.U. Printers' Home in Colorado Springs.

Officers found one inmate with his throat slashed. His condition was critical and it was believed he had been assaulted by other inmates.

The trouble had erupted at 10 a. m. Tuesday when an inmate overpowered a guard, stole his keys and released other prisoners. The convicts then grabbed guards as hostages. More than 300 convicts among the 2,500 imprisoned men were involved in the rebellion.

Maury C. Koblenz, state corrections chief who bargained through the entire time for release of the hostages, gave the rebel inmates "one last chance to release them." This was at 2:30 p. m. (EDT) Wednesday.

World Leaders Protest Invasion of Czechoslovakia

LONDON (AP) — Throughout the world Wednesday, Communists and capitalists, rich nations and poor, black and white, young demonstrators and senior government leaders protested the invasion of Czechoslovakia. Nonaligned nations painstakingly courted by the Kremlin for years threw charges of "imperialist aggression" back at Moscow and demanded withdrawal of Warsaw Pact forces from Czechoslovak soil.

Leftist Syria was the only nation to accept immediately and officially the Soviet explanation that Russian and other hard-core Communist troops were invited in by Prague authorities.

In London Prime Minister Harold Wilson called the invasion "a flagrant violation of the United Nations charter and all accepted standards of international behavior."

"This is a tragedy not only for Czechoslovakia but for Europe and the whole world," his statement added, "it is a serious blow to the efforts which so many countries have been making to improve relations between East and West."

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi of India, in her strongest criticism of Moscow since taking office two years ago, demanded a quick withdrawal from Czechoslovakia.

In Kinshasa, the Congolese government announced it would withdraw its students from the countries that invaded Czechoslovakia.

Italy said that because of the invasion it would not now sign the treaty banning the spread of nuclear weapons, "to allow a pause of reflection."

The Soviet Union and the United States collaborated in drafting the treaty.

European leaders, including Wilson, President Charles de Gaulle of France, President Giuseppe Saragat of Italy and Foreign Minister Willy Brandt of West Germany, interrupted vacations to talk with Cabinet colleagues about the crisis.

De Gaulle's office issued a relatively mild statement deploring Soviet intervention, saying it "runs counter to European detente."

Youthful demonstrators protested outside Soviet embassies in several countries.

Several windows were smashed by about 1,500 demonstrators at the Soviet Embassy near Bonn. About 400 youths tried to storm the Soviet military mission in Frankfurt but were turned back by police.

In Bern, about 300 Swiss demonstrators gathered outside the Soviet Embassy. There were no incidents. Smaller demonstrations were held outside Soviet offices in the capitals of Norway, Sweden, Australia and New Zealand.

Some 50 demonstrators marched on the Soviet Embassy in Rome. Some threw eggs at the walls.

Communist parties in Western Europe summoned meetings on the crisis. Several issued immediate denunciations of the invasion.

The Italian Communist party, largest in the West, expressed "grave dissent" over the invasion. The second largest Communist party in Western Europe, the French, expressed "surprise and severe disapproval."

Czechoslovakia's two main supporters in the Communist bloc, Yugoslavia and Romania, both were deeply critical of the Soviet action.

The president and Communist party chief of Romania, Nicolae Ceausescu, called the invasion "a grave mistake" that could jeopardize peace in Europe and the future of the world Communist movement.

President Tito of Yugoslavia called the Soviet action "a grave blow to socialist and progressive forces in the world."

Wirtz Hopes Progressives, Liberals Will Stay United

CHICAGO (AP) — Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz, a silent supporter of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey for the Democratic nomination, said Wednesday he hopes "liberals and progressives will keep united" in the November election, "so we won't lose the gains we've made in recent years."

Wirtz told 3,000 delegates to the 14th constitutional convention of the United Steelworkers that he has been benched for the moment by President Johnson from active politicking until the Democrats choose a nominee here next week.

Then he said he would be ready to campaign.

Wirtz said Americans have learned in the last seven years "that we can do anything that we set out to do."

"When you combine the idealism of John Kennedy, the aggressive effectiveness of Lyndon Johnson and now the promise for the future of Hubert Humphrey, you have got a 1-2-3 punch that this country has never seen before," Wirtz said.

Black steelworkers are refusing to quit their fight for a Negro on the executive board of the 1.2-million member union, despite Tuesday's overwhelming rejection of a resolution that would have created a special vice presidency.

"We did not fail in our efforts," said Rayfield Mooty of Chicago, secretary-treasurer of a Negro committee that is demanding a Black be appointed to the 33 member policy-making board.

"We were merely set back. We are a people with along history of setbacks. We get up each time."

The committee intensified its picketing demonstrations outside the International Amphitheatre where the convention is being held. And it planned more pressure—possibly a walkout—despite President I. W. Abel's efforts to cool the internal revolt.

"Abel says he can appoint and we can't elect," Mooty told newsmen. "Therefore we believe there will be an explosive situation in the Steelworkers Union as long as Abel is unable to appoint a member to the board and we are unable to elect."

"Under the present makeup of the union a Negro stands a better chance of being elected President of the United States," he said.

The west coast has fewer thunderstorms than any other area in the country—an average of less than five a year, according to the National Geographic Society.

Policymakers Move On to Chicago

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic policymakers moved to Chicago Wednesday to begin writing the party's 1968 platform, after hearing that grassroots sentiment favors "an immediate bombing halt in all of North Vietnam."

Rep. Hugh L. Carey of New York, speaking for 73 Congress members who held hearings in eight cities, said the 300 witnesses overwhelmingly favored cessation of bombing "to further the chances for success in the current negotiations."

Not one witness advocated either a continuation of our present policy or an escalation of our present military effort," Carey reported.

The 110 Platform Committee members—along with hales and bundles of testimony taken here, plus 90 pounds of hearing transcripts brought by Carey—headed for Chicago by chartered plane.

In that strike-plagued city, where the Democratic National Convention opens Monday, the platform body planned a public session Thursday, then private drafting sessions until they resolve their divisions over Vietnam and other key issues.

The platform must be presented for approval Tuesday.

Depends on You

Heart transplant patients and thousands of persons undergoing less dramatic surgery these days owe their chances for life and health to the work of Karl Landsteiner, a scientist born 100 years ago in Baden, Austria. Landsteiner discovered the A, B and O blood types. Until he did so, blood transfusions were usually futile and frequently fatal. Any sort of organ transplant was a fantastic dream. His work opened a new world to the surgeon. He came to the United States, received a Nobel Prize and lived until 1943. He is buried in a quiet graveyard on Nantucket Island off New England.

Favorite Son Vigorito

Former Gov. George Leader of Pennsylvania, a delegate to the Democratic National Convention and still a power in Pennsylvania politics, became quite excited when he heard of plans to place the name of Rep. Joseph Vigorito, D-Pa., before the convention as a favorite son vice presidential candidate.

Leader at first misunderstood the report as an effort to run Vigorito for the presidential nomination against Hubert Humphrey.

"What are you trying to do, upset the applecart?" he exploded in a phone call to Vigorito. "You yourself are already on record in support of Humphrey and most of the delegates from our state will be for him."

"I'm still for him for the presidential nomination—nothing has changed," replied Vigorito.

Vigorito went on to explain that the Erie County Democratic Committee, which controls about a third of Pennsylvania's 162 delegate votes, was supporting him for second place on the Landsteiner's birth will be marked October 27-31, at the annual meeting in Washington, D.C., of the American Association of Blood Banks which has pioneered the blood clearing-house system in which the Red Cross joins. This permits blood given locally to be credited to a patient in a distant city, helps save lives, and cuts medical costs for many people.

But, human blood comes only from human beings. If you are in good health and between 18 and 59 years old, your blood bank or collection center will welcome you as a blood donor. Unless enough of us take the trouble to do this, Karl Landsteiner will have worked in vain.

Democratic ticket. The committee will seek a unanimous, statewide endorsement when the entire Pennsylvania delegation caucuses in Chicago.

"Erie County is just trying to pay me a tribute for my work in Congress," said the young Congressman. "I don't know how far it will go in Chicago."

Vigorito's backers think he is a good prospect for the vice presidential nomination because of his Italian-American background and the need for strong ethnic support at the polls in urban areas if the Democrats are to win in November. The liberal Pennsylvania has a good legislative record in Congress, where he fought for the American consumer in a number of crucial battles this year.

Following Leader's call, Vigorito immediately got in touch with Humphrey's office. Ken Birkhead, one of the Vice President's top aides, quickly reassured him.

"Certainly, we will not object if you're placed in nomination for the vice presidency," chuckled Birkhead. "Just be sure they spell your name right, Joe."

WILLIAM BUCKLEY

Roy Cohn's Book

A few weeks ago a book appeared by Roy Cohn on Senator Joe McCarthy in which the author contributed his own recollection of what had gone on during the Army McCarthy hearings and the period immediately before when Cohn served as Chief Counsel for McCarthy's investigating committee. The book is by all accounts a fascinating document. Indeed the editors of Esquire, who are not to be confused with McCarthyites, excerpted a large chunk of it and ran a picture of Mr. Cohn on the cover, with a halo 'round his head, to make it absolutely clear that they considered the whole thing something of a joke. Still, it was an interesting editorial decision. It said at least this, there is a considerable appetite, even now so many years after Senator McCarthy's death, for what the whole business is all about; and that Roy Cohn's book is highly revealing for anyone who has such an appetite.

Buckley

As indeed it is. This has nothing at all to do with the indisputable fact that Mr. Cohn's book is self-serving. On the other hand, Roy Cohn didn't write the kind of book the critics could most easily have dealt with, namely one which uncritically supported everything McCarthy did or said during the period of their association. Rather, Cohn's book says, in effect, this: 1) McCarthy was a complex man whose movements were frequently disorganized; 2) he was nevertheless up to something, something of considerable national significance; and 3) in any case, the contumely to which he was subjected was out of proportion to his offenses. Fair enough, one would think.

But oh, how the guardians of the demomology have reacted! One reviewer recalls how McCarthyism hit him in his particular circumstances, causing one "matron" to report him to the FBI as a "security risk" "after I had publicly confessed admiration for Adlai Stevenson" — which may be an argument against silly matrons, but is hardly one against Senator McCarthy or Roy Cohn.

It is, needless to say, unlikely that Mr. Cohn's book will cause what is so long overdue, namely a thoughtful reexamination of the great McCarthy controversy. The result of that, when it comes — and it will, one of these days — will surely establish that the Senator caused more people to make bloody asses of themselves than anybody in the history of the world. People like Robert Hutchins, I mean; who, during the heyday of McCarthyism, gravely reported that such was the reign of terror that it required an act of physical courage to contribute money to Harvard University. Senator McCarthy said some foolish things. But none so foolish as those of his principal detractors.

What makes Roy Cohn's book so very interesting is its confirmation of a basic datum of contemporary America. It is that certain points of view are not publicly tolerated — for fear of ending, as McCarthy did, drunk, invalid, discredited. McCarthy produced, in the opinion of the reviewer for the New York Times, "a healthy revulsion against the reckless kind of super-Americanism he represented. He may, indeed, have run the demagogue business into the ground for the next generation or so. At least we have had only a few cardboard imitations of the breed since he passed this way."

I read the situation differently. What has happened, most anxiously in the last two or three years, is a banquet of wanton and - Americanism — which has come about in part as a result of an over-reaction to McCarthyism. And to this, a reaction in turn is now brewing. The indignant anti-Americanism of such folk heroes as Benjamin Spock and the pot-set intellectuals is creating a resolute though unvoiced opposition. It is at the moment weak, and I wish that, under its current leadership — it is tightly wound into the George Wallace movement — it would stay weak.

But the impulses to opposition are there, and they are nurtured by those Americans who believe that what McCarthy was all about was the effort to affirm an American consensus which excluded certain things. Certain things as, yes, un-American. The repression of McCarthyism, so brutal, so total, drove these sentiments underground. There they gather, and may well do much more damage than the matron who bullied the poor defenseless writer who confessed an admiration for Adlai Stevenson.

I have had a few dealings with our police department and departments from other states and they can not compare to the kindness and consideration of Mr. Richard A. McWilliams and his fellow officers.

Very truly yours,
Frank J. Fox

Lost or Stolen Credit Cards

There are now an estimated 2,000 different types of bank credit cards circulating in the U.S., an estimated 200,000,000 credit cards of all types in circulation. On top of this, 100,000,000 new cards are being issued each year by banks, oil companies, airlines, the travel - entertainment industries, the telephone company, others.

The probability is, therefore, that you own at least one credit card and that you have received in addition a dozen or more unsolicited cards.

What warning does this credit card avalanche have for you? One very down-to-earth warning is that the odds have soared on your misplacing your card or having it stolen. And your chances of suffering a severe pocketbook blow when a thief uses your card for a shopping binge are greater than ever. The number of lost credit cards is now placed at about 1,500,000 each year, of which some 300,000 are stolen. Dollar losses due to stolen credit cards are now estimated at from $50,000,000 to $100,000,000 a year. While a large part of the losses are being absorbed by the major issuers, you, the holder, are taking a significant share as well.

Porter

Typically, the credit card thief who gets possession of your oil company credit card will either sell it for, say $25 to $75, or he will take a trip from service station to service station, buying up large amounts of expensive batteries and tires for re-sale.

The thief who steals your travel - and - entertainment credit card may sell the card for as much as $500. Or he too may go on a spree with the card, charging to your account items ranging from hotel bills and air travel to TV sets, jewelry and fur coats.

Organized gangs also have moved into the stolen credit card field. Last November, a clutch of Mafia members were arrested, after they had spent more than $350,000 in the U.S. and abroad through stolen credit cards.

The gangsters are now reported to be peddling "convenient credit card packages" to professional thieves, including matching credit cards, driver's licenses, Social Security cards and checkbooks, for up to $1,000 a package.

To combat the problem of lost and stolen credit cards, the banks finally are beginning to cut down on mass mailings of unsolicited cards. At the same time, Congress has considered legislation to curb these mailings and to make the use of stolen credit cards a federal offense. Several states have passed laws to limit the liability of an individual holder when his credit cards are stolen. Also, some distributors of credit cards are now making a practice of periodically re-issuing credit cards to all customers and cancelling the validity of all formerly issued cards. American Express and others are meanwhile substantially expanding the policing of their credit cards by security forces. Under discussion or under development are:

+ New types of credit cards which would bear an invisible coded identification number. You, the holder, would memorize the number and then your number could be verified by a small electronic device when you submit the card to pay for a purchase.

+ An invisible fingerprint which you, the legitimate holder of the card, would match when you make a purchase at a store or restaurant, etc.

+ An especially recorded "voice pattern" on each card which would confirm as your own voice simply by speaking into a device at the store, etc.

+ A master black list of all stolen credit cards throughout the nation which would be distributed wherever credit cards are accepted in place of cash. Meanwhile, how can you, the credit card holder, protect yourself against losses if your card is stolen? In what instances are you, and in what instances are you not, liable for losses?

Tomorrow's column will give you the answers.

Talk Of Jail Break

CHICAGO — There have been so many security precautions taken for the Democratic National Convention in Chicago that the big fear here is not that people will be unable to get into the convention hall, but that they will not be able to get out. And so all the talk in Chicago concerns escape.

Four delegates were in the exercise yard at the stockyards pretending they were playing volleyball. Armed guards watched them from the towers and police dogs patrolled the electric and barbed-wire fence around the hall.

"It's no use," said Hymie from Idaho. "We'll never be able to break out of here."

"Shut up," said San Fernando Joe. "There isn't a convention hall in the country that can hold me."

"You've never been in one of Warden Daley's lockups," said Peoria Pete. "No one has ever escaped from one of his halls, at least not before the nominations."

"I say we tunnel out of here," said Colorado Charlie. "Listen, there's an air shaft under the speaker's podium, and we could dig at night during the credentials fight. No one would hear us."

"Yeah," said Hymie, "but where do we put the dirt?"

"Where the press is sitting. No one would notice it there."

"It's no good. One of the TV cameras might catch us, and they'd have the National Guard on us before you could say John Bailey."

"I'm only an alternate delegate," cried Peoria Pete. "I want to do my time and walk out through the gate instead of going over the wall."

"Knock it off, Pete," said San Fernando Joe angrily. "You're into this too deep to back out now. Another word out of you and I'll shove this Gene McCarthy banner down your throat."

"Keep playing volleyball. Daley's guards are getting suspicious."

"But," Hymie said, after serving, "what's our plan?"

Colorado Charlie pretended he was tying his shoe. "President Johnson's birthday is on the 27th, and everyone will be celebrating it in the hall. The guards will probably have a party of their own, and there will only be a skeleton crew in the towers. We'll go to the hall and sit in our delegates' seats and pretend we're having a good time. Then, when everyone stands up to sing 'Happy Birthday Dear Lyndon,' we make a break for it — out the back door."

"Yeah, right into the arms of the Secret Service."

Colorado Charlie said, "Shut up and listen. On our way out we grab the Ohio delegation and hold them as hostages. Hubert Humphrey can't win without Ohio. He'll have to tell Warden Daley to let us go."

"It might work," said San Fernando Joe. "Anything is better than staying here and listening to those seconding speeches."

Colorado Joe started tying his other shoe. "It has to work. My wife is visiting me this afternoon, and she's going to bring me some 'McGovern for President' balloons. In one of the balloons there's going to be a hack saw. As soon as we get outside, Pete will cut the electric cable and Hymie will drive a CBS-TV truck next to the wall. That's how we go over."

"But what do we do for a getaway car?"

"We're next to the stockyards, dummy. While they're blocking all the highways, we'll be on a freight train to Austin, Tex., underneath a ton of pork sausages."

MASON DENISON

The Quiet Agency

HARRISBURG — With a presidential election in the offing this fall, at least one agency of Pennsylvania's state government complex will have its watchdogging beagles at full stance — ready to pounce at the drop of a phony ballot bone.

Actually few residents of the Keystone State realize such an agency exists as the Bureau of Investigations and Civil Rights within the State Department of Justice.

It isn't concerned exclusively with elections and illicit election shenanigans by any stretch of the imagination — it just happens to be one of its areas of coverage, as for example during the vote fraud ruckus in Lackawanna County during the past year.

It was in response to charges that there had been vote fraud in the primary election of 1967 in Dunmore that the bureau quietly went into action — and found that 71 fraudulent votes out of a total of 250 had been recorded and counted.

Following the investigation, four members of the local election board were arrested and later all four entered pleas of guilty. Their sentences included fines and costs, probation and disfranchisement for four years.

But perhaps one of the most publicized cases bureau beagles sniffed to light was the LSD - sun blindness hoax, in which the State Commissioner for the Blind reported earlier this year that six Pennsylvania college students had gone blind by staring at the sun while under the influence of LSD. Governor Shafer, convinced that too many of the facets of the sun blindness story were in the dark, ordered an investigation — and into action went the Justice Department's Bureau of Investigation.

Upshot: the LSD-sun blindness tale was proved a hoax and the State Commissioner for the Blind subsequently admitted that he had made up the story and falsified six case records. And then there was the case of the missing mercury which developed during a federal audit of the State Bureau of Federal Surplus Property.

For four months agents of the Bureau of Investigations quietly went about their probing into the disappearance of the flasks of mercury.

Upshot of the probe: seven employees of the Surplus Bureau were dismissed and the assistant director arrested, and following trial sentenced.

Rather curiously perhaps, there was no agency as such in the State Department of Justice until 1956 when Robert R. West, a former Secret Service agent, was appointed to head up such a division. He started out with two agents in his then mere division.

Today there are 25 special investigators assigned to the bureau, which now maintains offices in Pittsburgh and Philadelphia in addition to the Harrisburg headquarters.

During the past two-year biennial period, for example, the bureau handled 353 cases — 141 for the Department of Justice itself, 160 for the State Department of Highways and 52 for civil rights. Nearly 2300 personal interviews were conducted and more than 5500 letters received.

The investigating prowess of the U.S. Department of Justice is well known and well documented via the notoriety of the Washington probe route — but few realize the extent or depth of the investigative work of Pennsylvania's Department of Justice, through its own investigating bureau.

It may well pop into the limelight during the presidential elections in the Keystone State this fall, depending of course, upon what happens in the voting booth.

I am writing this note to again thank the two police officers that handled our unfortunate accident on August 15, 1968. We were from out of state and these two men made it a lot easier by their kindness and personal concern in our problem. DAV Urges Coastal Waters Increase

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The national convention of Disabled American Veterans (DAV) adopted Wednesday a resolution urging the President to increase the coastal waters of the nation from the present three-mile limit to 12 miles.

The resolution also asked for military action against all ships violating the proposed 12-mile limit with unlawful intent, including sinking if necessary.

Other resolutions passed by the DAV were:

— Prosecution of those who assist draft dodgers and criminal prosecution of those who seek refuge from the draft in foreign countries upon their return.

— Special training of the national guard for civil disorders and the establishment of home guard units to augment and support local law enforcement officials.

— Opposition to any financial aid or subsidies to students and faculty who take part in campus riots.

— Asked the President to take any steps deemed necessary for the return of the USS Pueblo and its crew from North Korea.

— Stop trade by American companies which result in supplying war materials to enemy forces in Southeast Asia.

National political conventions of major parties have been held in 15 cities since 1856, Chicago, where the Democratic Party is scheduled to meet Aug. 26, has been a convention site on 24 previous occasions. The Republicans bring the meeting to Miami Beach for the first time.

New Line of Ski-Doo's Now Showing at Midtown

There was a time when only the Eskimos thought about snow and ice the year 'round. But no more! The mushrooming growth of snowmobiling is changing that situation throughout the United States' snowbelt regions.

Nowadays more and more people keep cool in summer's hottest months by thinking snow—and the pioneer and largest manufacturer of snowmobiles, Bombardier, Ltd., is helping them do so by introducing its newest creations in the heat of summer.

In fact, the new line of 1969 Ski-Doo snowmobiles is making its bow at Midtown Motors. The '69 Ski-Doo's offer the most complete selection of snowmobiles yet developed with 12 models in four series, recognizing the broadening scope of snowmobile uses and the growing sophistication of buyers. The machines feature an extensive range of engineering advancements to provide improved performance, quieter and safer operation, and easier maintenance, with a choice of three track sizes, nine engine sizes, and many convenience features. Electric start models are even equipped with cigarette lighter on their wood-grained dash panel.

The '69 Ski-Doo's include two completely new series — wide-track Nordic 371 and 371E (E for electric start) and high-performance TNT (Track 'N Trail) 399 and 669 for racing. In addition, there are five Olympic models and three Alpine models.

All the '69 Ski-Doo's have new looks with three different styles. The Nordics and TNT 669 project a low-slung, aerodynamic profile, highlighted by a chrome bumper which rings the sleek nose. The Olympics and TNT 399 have bullet-shaped contour; the Alpines offer rounded front-end styling.

The Nordics have an 18-inch-track, widest ever by Bombardier, coupled with a new 371cc 24-hp Rotax engine, giving this family-fun machine a combination of stability, power, and sportiness. There is plenty of legroom and power for two-person riding.

The Nordics have a completely-enclosed, tilt-forward engine cowl, new drum brake system also standard on TNT series and Olympic 320 and 320E, and sound-muffling exhaust system standard on all '69 Ski-Doo's. The Olympics retain the 15-inch track pioneered by Bombardier and continue to be among the sportiest snowmobiles on the market. The series has more powerful engines this year — a 300cc power-plant on the Olympic 12-3, one of the industry's lowest priced full-size machines, and a new 320cc, 18-hp engine on the Olympic 320 and 320E. The Olympic 12-3 SS with 292cc, 24-hp engine and 320 SS with 335cc, 30-hp engine are designed for exacting requirements of today's stock racing circuit.

The Alpine series again has single front ski and twin 15-inch tracks for better flotation in deep snow and mountainous terrain. The Alpine 370 and 370E have 370cc, 20-hp engines. A new top-of-the-line Alpine has a 640cc, 40-hp engine for added climbing power and performance.

Parts and service warranty is one year on all Ski-Doo's except the racing series and Alpine 640E, which carry 90 days.

Bradford Port To Be Closed Saturday

Bradford Regional Airport will be closed to traffic Saturday, according to present plans, to permit resurfacing of a portion of runways in the intersection area, Frank E. Stack, superintendent said Tuesday.

He stated the prime contractor in the runway expansion project, E. M. Brown construction Company of Clearfield, has indicated the project is about 60 per cent completed. Since last Friday, the area electrical workers union has picketed the airport, but officials said no interruption of contract work has been affected as yet.

The Brown contract for $693,000, calls for lengthening of the main northwest-southeast runway 1,500 to 6,500 feet and widening the entire runway from 100 to 150 feet. Grading work, which was commenced in May, is still to be undertaken by the firm.

The project has been scheduled for completion late this fall.

Struthers Acquires 2 Firms

The completion of the acquisition by Struthers Wells Corporation (AMEX) of Developers Small Business Investment Company and The Deviney Construction Company was announced today by Jerry Finkelstein, Struthers' president.

The business and assets of Developers was acquired through a wholly-owned subsidiary, Struthers Capital Corporation. Struthers Capital is a federal licensee under the Small Business Investment Act of 1958 and has its principal office at 630 Fifth ave., New York, N.Y.

"The acquisition of the business of Developers, through an exchange of stock, represents an important advance in a planned program by which Struthers can further participate in future growth areas through new and developing companies," Finkelstein said.

The Deviney Construction Company of Jackson, Miss., was acquired by Struthers for approximately $2,850,000 in cash and notes, Finkelstein also reported.

Deviney is principally engaged in the installation of underground cable for electric and telephone utilities and CATV as well as the clearing and maintenance of utility right-of-ways. It will be operated as a new Struthers subsidiary.

"The acquisition of the utility construction and service company further broadens the operations of Struthers and should add significantly to Struthers' earnings," he said.

Earlier this year, Struthers acquired 80 per cent of Realtronics, Inc., a computer analysis service company, and Douglas Microwave Co., Inc., a designer and manufacturer of electronic components and sub-systems.

Struthers Wells Corporation is a diversified engineering and manufacturing organization supplying engineered process equipment to the nuclear power, chemical, fertilizer, petrochemical and petroleum refining industries. Through subsidiaries, it is also engaged in the manufacture and development of water and waste treatment engineering processes and freeze concentration of foods and chemicals. It also sponsors and is developing steroid formulations for the aging of skin including baldness.

Research Sub Christened

'Ben Franklin'

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—With the shattering of a bottle containing water from the seven seas, America's newest and heaviest research submarine was formally christened "Ben Franklin" Wednesday by a direct descendant of that scientist-statesman.

"An adventure in the great tradition of seafaring," said the Navy's top oceanographer in describing plans to use the 50-foot-long submersible for an extensive four-week 1,500-mile drift deep in the Gulf Stream next April.

Speaking to more than 350 persons who attended the christening ceremony at the Port of Palm Beach for the bus-sized submarine, once known as simply the PK15, Rear Adm. O. D. Waters Jr., oceanographer for the Navy, said: "Information gleaned from the trip is of obvious military value."

"But it will also add to the increasing store of oceanographic data at the disposal of those private and public agencies interested in the contribution the ocean can make to our economic welfare," he added.

Miss Louisa J. Castle of Wilmington, Del., great-great-great-great-granddaughter of Benjamin Franklin, smashed the bottle of water across the gleaming white hull of the 135-ton submarine to formally name it in honor of the Philadelphia, who prepared early charts of the Gulf Stream's current.

A GOOD NIGHT AT THE FIGHTS

(c) 1968 New York Times News Service
NEW YORK, Aug. 21—Sometime in the sixth round, as the blood-tinged sweat sprayed off his head and danced in the hot lights, Jose Gonzalez must have understood that Bennie Briscoe was slightly mad that night, and would never go down. They were standing in the center of the ring in Madison Square Garden, their toes an inch apart, hitting each other in the face. The sound of leather against facial bone is unlike any other sound in the ring. It is a thunk that draws people right out of their seats, and makes them scream until they are sickened, and then ashamed of themselves.

Briscoe is not a particularly accomplished fighter, he is awkward and slow, but his head is shaven and he wears red velvet trunks and on his red shoes are white Stars of David. This is in tribute to his Jewish owner, Jim Iselin, one of the wealthy young sportsmen who also owns Buster Mathis. Iselin's publicity man is fond of retelling how Iselin walked into Briscoe's window-less 3-room apartment in Philadelphia and "had a revelation about how other people live." Last Tuesday night, Briscoe was pushing his way out of the apartment, and Gonzalez was the door.

When prizefights are well-matched, well-staged and well-fought, as were the three scheduled 10-rounders Tuesday night, there is a sense of completion and satisfaction—among losers and winners, backers and fans—rare in any sport.

This was a good night at the fights. Gonzalez, a middleweight who has been around, sensed that there is no stopping a madman or a comer. Gonzalez has tended bar between fights for a previous manager, has won meaningless titles like North American Middleweight Championship, and has beaten many fighters with his schooled and strong journeyman attack. But he broke in the sixth round when Briscoe wouldn't acknowledge the pain, and Gonzalez showed anger at a butt and anger at a punch after the bell, and in his rage and frustration his jabs began to fall more and more lightly.

By the ninth his deep-set eyes were pools of blood. But Briscoe could only sense the damage, he was never good enough to put the professional away. Briscoe won a unanimous decision.

In the second 10-rounder, Frankie Narvaez, a stumpy light-weight who fights ponderously, was led into the ring by handlers wearing white sweaters marked "Melendez," the name of the young welterweight preliminary boy who opened the program. This should have been sign enough. Four years ago, Narvaez was managed by a young stock-broker who saw nothing but championships and 6-per cent yields in the future. Now he was fighting a Panamanian named Antonio Amaya, and there was no way he could win.

Amaya is a beautiful fighter, whip-lean and controlled, dark eyes glinting out of a broken-nosed, impassive face. His left jab snapped out, one, two, three times into Narvaez's face, and his right crackled across and hit the local man coming in and going away until Frankie began to flinch before a punch was even thrown.

There were 9,074 paying customers in the Garden, and they all seemed to realize that Amaya was a man of rare talent, that they were seeing an artist at work. There would not be many nights like this one, with the most expensive seat selling for $10 and the heaviest fighter weighing 161 pounds. Fighters react to crowds, as do all entertainers, and Narvaez and Amaya were led into incredibly long duels as the Panamanian slashed and Narvaez bulled through and Amaya leaped away, pausing in mid-fight to whip home a hook.

For the last two minutes of the fight, they stood forehead to forehead in a neutral corner, ripping short rights and lefts up into each other's face as the crowd stood and applauded to the final bell. Amaya's decision was unanimous, too.

The star of the night was to be Ismael Laguna, once lightweight champion, now a contender, a finely-formed man with coppery-brown skin who vaulted the ropes and dropped lightly into the ring. In the first second of the first round, a handsome and wild-eyed 22-year-old, Lloyd Marshall, rushed across the ring and belted Laguna in the face.

Marshall was not to win that night, his important victories will come later, but he pressed Laguna and charged him wildly and hurled himself at the Panamanian so recklessly he nearly went out of the ring. Laguna was careful because Marshall could hit, but Laguna is a bird and a deer and a snake when he chooses. He danced from side to side, and whipped in combinations and broke open the youngster's eye and got down to work, jabbing Marshall into confusion, stopping him with short rights, keeping the cut open and bleeding hard.

The fight was stopped in the ninth round, but there was little complaint in the crowd. The people filed out into the hot August night, subdued, satisfied, thoughtful, some a little sick at the peaks of exultation they had been brought to by those who fight for them.

FIVE BROWNS AND ONE WALLEYE

William Reitz had a good day fishing, catching five brown trout and one walleyed pike. The fish, all between 12 and 20 inches long, were caught in the fallwaters of the Kinzua Dam. Bill said he has been getting similar catches all year long. (Photo by Gordon Mahan)

Gogolak's Kicking Joy For Washington Skins

WASHINGTON (AP) — For Charlie Gogolak, the Hungarian-born soccer-style kicker for the Washington Redskins, the New Year began June 28.

For the first time since last fall, Gogolak swung his leg against a football. His apparent recovery from the injury that sidelined him is one of the few causes for celebration among the Redskins who are still looking for their first winning finish since 1955.

In a 5-6-3 showing last year, the Redskins had the best passing in the National Football League, but just about the worst running game, a pass defense that crumbled in the clutch and an erratic succession of would-be kicking substitutes.

This year quarterback Sonny Jurgensen, the NFL passing champion, still is recovering from an elbow operation in May that has left his arm too weak to risk throwing the ball in preseason play. Half the defensive backfield has been shuffled by trades. The running attack remains unproven. But at least Gogolak is healthy—maybe.

Gogolak led the Redskins scoring with an outstanding rookie year in 1966 but pulled a muscle in his leg in the first game last fall and didn't kick again until June.

"The leg had a bad tear, worse than many people realized," he said.

The Redskins' main medical concern this year has been Jurgensen's elbow.

Jurgensen, who broke NFL records by hitting 288 of 508 passes for 3,747 yards last year, has stayed on the sidelines in preseason games.

Both Jurgensen and Coach Otto Graham say the arm will be ready for the regular season.

Jim Ninowski, probably will start if Jurgensen isn't ready. Behind him is Heisman Trophy winner Gary Beban of UCLA, who the Redskins signed for an estimated $200,000.

The Redskins have back their talented trio of pass receivers, All-Pro Charley Taylor, Jerry Smith and Bobby Mitchell, who finished 1-2-4 in the NFL last year.

Graham, trying to find a breakaway threat for his limp ground game, has returned Mitchell to running back where he sparked for Cleveland six years ago. Taylor remains at split end, with Smith moving from tight end to flanker to replace Mitchell.

Mining the ranks of NFL veterans who played out their options or got into quarrels with their clubs, the Redskins grabbed four experienced pros. Washington acquired Marlin McKeever from Minnesota for the tight end spot and signed ex-Cleveland guard John Wooten in efforts to bolster the blocking. The club obtained two veteran pass defenders from St.

Louis, Jim Burson and Pat Fischer.

Beban leads the rookies, who include rangy cornerback Jim Smith of Oregon, the top draft choice, and kicking discovery—Mike Bragg of Richmond, whose booming punts appear to have already won him that specialty assignment.

Long Island All-Stars Challenge Hot Stovers

The Long Island All-Stars will make a return visit to Warren tonight. The Islanders will again play a team of Cadet All-Stars. Game time at War Memorial Field will be 6:15 p.m.

The Long Island and Warren teams locked horns in July for a two-game set. The first game ended in a tie, while Warren won the second by a one-run margin.

The Long Island All-Stars enjoyed their previous sojourn in Warren although the stay was blighted by a loss. Since continuing the road trip to Wyoming, they have compiled a record of 18 wins and one loss.

They are anxious to play Warren again, they have notified local Hot Stovers, and the local team has accepted their challenge.

Hot Stove League officers have decided to charge 25 cents for students and $1 for adults. The proceeds of the game will be used to help defray Hot Stove League expenses for next season's play.

Nevele Pride Favorite In Hambletonian Stake

DU QUOIN, Ill. (AP) — As many as 11 owners of star 3-year-old trotters are expected to drop $2,000 checks in the red entry box by 10 a. m. CDT, today for the $125,000 Hambletonian Stake Sunday.

Immediately following the entry closing, the draw for post positions will be held for the harness racing classic in which Nevele Pride is pegged a heavy favorite and a threat to Greyhound's 30-year-old world mile mark of 1:55 1/4.

Trainers and drivers unanimously have established Nevele Pride an odds-on choice to take the Hambletonian in straight heats.

But a Hambletonian jinx hovers over Stanley Dancer, Nevele Pride's trainer and driver, who has had "cinch" winners fall before—Dazzling Speed, finishing fifth last year and Noble Victory folding to seventh in 1965.

Nevele Pride's chief threat appears to be Snow Speed, who handed the favored colt his first defeat after 18 straight wins on Aug. 15.

But the setback in the Review Futurity at Springfield, Ill., came after a wheel-locking incident involving the sulkies of Nevele Pride and Snow Speed.

As a result, Nevele Pride broke stride and Snow Speed took an opening victory in 1:58 1/5. But Nevele Pride roared back to take the second heat in season record time of 1:58 3/5. Snow Speed, owned by Castleton Farm, will be driven again by Ralph Baldwin.

Fast Pitch Tournney Scheduled

A two-day Fast Pitch softball tourney will be held at Wildcat Park, Dugaschonda, Saturday, Sept. 7, and Sunday, Sept. 8. The park is located on Route 120, St. Marys-Ridgway Road. The tourney is open to any team wishing to take part, according to Joseph Petrilli of Fern Road, St. Marys. It will be a single elimination event, with the winner getting a $100 cash prize. Trophies will be awarded the second and third place teams.

A Most Valuable Player trophy will be awarded to the one considered the tourney's outstanding player. Entry fee for the tourney will be $25 per team. Game balls and umpires will be provided by the tourney committee.

No game will start before noon on the specified day unless a rain delay would occur. Deadline for teams entering is Tuesday, Sept. 3. Team rosters will be limited to 18 players with no additions after play starts.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Pro golfers, spending as much time in meeting rooms these days as on the course, put away the gavels and take out the clubs today for the first round of the $100,000 Philadelphia Golf Classic.

Dan Sikes, now the tour's seventh leading money winner with $98,562, defends his title in the four-day, 72-hole test over the 6,708-yard par 36-36-72 White Marsh Valley Country Club course.

All of this year's tour champions with the exception of Arnold Palmer are in the starting field of 156.

The competition begins under an atmosphere of tension. Veterans on the tour do not know if this will be their last tournament under the aegis of the Professional Golfers Association (PGA).

Led by Gardner Dickinson, Frank Beard, Jack Nicklaus and Billy Casper, among others on a 13-man board, the pros are organizing their own group to run the tour—the American Professional Golfers (APG).

A meeting was held Tuesday night at White Marsh in which Max Elbin, national PGA president, told some 70 of the touring pros he didn't recognize their new group. Elbin said a new tournament entry blank was being prepared.

"A player who signs it may continue on the PGA tour," Elbin said. "Those who don't sign will be ineligible."

The PGA executive said he wasn't sure how soon the new blank would be ready since certain legal points have to be ironed out.

The entire scene was one of confusion. Elbin admitted tournament sponsors and the television network involved probably would sue both the players and the PGA if the top pros don't play in tournaments already scheduled.

He said the PGA "didn't bargain or ask for this, but we're ready for it."

Elbin indicated the new entry blank, which would make an outcast of any pro failing to sign, might be ready in time for the Thunderbird Tournament starting Aug. 29 at Montclair, N.J. "Then again, it might be later," he said.

While the pros and their parent organization chipped away at each other, practice for the almost forgotten Philadelphia Classic went ahead.

Young Bob Murphy, who lost by a stroke to Julius Boros on the final hole in the Westchester Classic last week, shot a 4-under-par 68 in the pro-amateur tournament Wednesday.

Boros, Nicklaus, Lee Trevino, Bob Goalby, Casper and Tom Weiskopf also will be after the $20,000 first prize.

Czech Invasion

Has Sports Side Effects

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Sweden, Norway and Denmark announced Wednesday their withdrawal from several sports activities with Russia and East Germany because of the invasion of Czechoslovakia.

The Swedish Ice Hockey Association said it had canceled a planned training camp with a Russian squad in Sweden, Aug. 23-Sept. 6; Sweden, Norway and Denmark withdrew from the European Junior track meet scheduled for Leipzig, East Germany, Aug. 23-25, and the Swedes canceled a men's gymnastics meet against East Germany.

Seven Dogs, Lots of Puppies Now Ready for Adoption

The Warren County Humane Society now has seven dogs available for adoption plus a number of puppies. The number to call is 726-1961.

According to Mrs. Ruth Smith, dog committee, people may choose from the following:

—A one-year-old male tri-colored hound-type, friendly good dog, ready to learn.

—A one-year-old female white and tan large terrier-type with beautiful eyes like a deer. This is a strong, healthy, fun-loving dog.

—A one-year-old female brown and white collie-type. This is a large dog with a beautiful long coat. Call and ask about our laughing collie.

—A small female one-year-old hound-type, very friendly. This short haired dog would make a good companion. Ask about Queenie.

—A rust-colored male, short sleek coat. A happy tail-wagging friend, close to a year old.

—A brown and white female toy-collie type with cocker-spaniel ears, an extremely good looking dog that would make a good watch-dog also.

—A male hound-terrier tri-colored dog, smaller than the average hound, quiet and friendly, good lines. Ask for Tiny.

—The puppies are just about ready to be given away. They are beginning to eat. Come and see them. Pick one out.

Regional Jail To Be Built In Erie County

ERIE, Pa. (AP) — State Attorney General William Sennett said Wednesday that Erie County would be the site of one of several regional jails to be built in Pennsylvania.

Sennett said the regional jails would be operated by the Bureau of Correction and would house inmates who have been sentenced to more than six months and less than five years.

Their aim, Sennett said, would be rehabilitation of long-term prisoners.

The attorney general said the jail would be built in southeast Erie County.

Sennett made the announcement at a Republican Party picnic.

GOOD HUNTING COMPANION

Hunting season is drawing near and this year-old male hound-type pup, according to the Warren County Humane Society, has a nose for pheasant, grouse and rabbits. He can be yours by calling the Humane Society at 726-1961.

Municipalities Apply for Riot Control Funds

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Department of Justice said Wednesday that 55 Pennsylvania municipalities have applied for federal riot control funds made available by the Safety in the Streets Act.

The department said that the applications totaled $750,000, but that only $189,000 was available to Pennsylvania initially. More money was anticipated later this year.

Under the federal program, municipalities may use the funds to develop riot control plans and purchase needed equipment. Each $3 received must be matched locally with $1.

The state notified only 10 cities and eight boroughs of the availability of the federal money, but many other municipalities responded after learning that they also were eligible.

"The response has been overwhelming," Atty. Gen. William C. Sennett said.

The applications were being processed by the Pennsylvania Crime Commission, a segment of the Justice Department.

WAHS Exchange Student Eager To See Snow

Miss Carmelita A. Cochingo, Warren's foreign exchange student, has arrived in Warren. Carmelita, (or Charm—as she has been nicknamed) comes from Cabanatuan City in the Philippines, on the northern island of Luzon. It has a population of approximately 100,000.

Charm will live with the David Potter family, 124 Beatty st. and attend Warren Area High School where she and Becky Potter will both be members of the senior class.

Carmelita has three sisters and four brothers. She enjoys reading and writing and hopes to become a lawyer.

The Philippines have a population of 33 million people, with 45 per cent speaking English. Carmelita attends a high school with an enrollment of 2,045 students—where classes are taught in English—although Philippine is spoken at home. Charm is shivering already on chilly mornings. She is used to an average year-round temperature of 70 to 80 degrees and has never seen snow but said she is most eager for it to come.

Local sports sound familiar with the exception of football. Charm ventured the thought that "the football players are so big."

Our foods are not quite as spicy but she is enjoying everything, with one possible exception. Mrs. Potter mentioned that when cottage cheese was served Carmelita looked at it carefully and then said, "What is it?"

Fifty-five exchange students came by jet from the Philippines and will live in all parts of the United States. Pennsylvania has two other Philippine students spending a year here.

Many Warren people will recall Miss Christine Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Williams, who went to Ilo Ilo City in the Philippines during the summer of 1966 as Warren's foreign exchange student. Chris is now a student at the University of Wisconsin and has been over to the Potters' to welcome and visit with Carmelita.

Monday Mishap

A trailer section of a tractor trailer operated by Donald Nelson, 36, of Columbus, broke away about 4:15 p. m. on Route 957, according to State Police of the Corry substation. The trailer went off the highway and rolled over in a field.

WARREN TIMES-MIRROR AND OBSERVER

WARREN, PA., THURSDAY, AUGUST 22, 1968

David Maxwell Named Head Of State GOP Campaign

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Shafer announced the appointment Wednesday of a member of his cabinet, David O. Maxwell, as director of the Republican election campaign in Pennsylvania.

Shafer said Maxwell would take a leave of absence from his $25,000-a-year post as state insurance commissioner for the duration of the campaign.

The announcement came a day after Shafer had met here with the Republican presidential nominee, Richard M. Nixon, to discuss campaign plans for this key state.

The governor also said that at Nixon's request, former Secretary of Public Welfare Arlin M. Adams would continue as chairman of the Pennsylvania Citizens for Nixon.

Adams, who served three years in the cabinet of former Gov. William W. Scranton, supported Nixon before the Republican National Convention. Shafer and Scranton backed Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York.

Maxwell, a 38-year-old bachelor, made an unsuccessful run for Congress in 1960. He was executive director of the Citizens for Shafer during the 1966 gubernatorial campaign.

Prior to the GOP convention, Shafer dispatched Maxwell and Robert L. Kunzig, executive director of the General State Authority, on a tour of several states to sound out delegate sentiment for Nixon and Rockefeller.

Shafer said Maxwell would coordinate the Republican campaign in Pennsylvania at all levels—presidential, statewide and legislative races.

"We feel the campaign in 1968 is critical for Pennsylvania, the Republican Party and especially for the United States," the governor said.

Shafer said Pennsylvania's 29 electoral votes, more than any single state except New York (43) and California (40), means that the Commonwealth will be "a vital battleground in the campaign."

He said he expected Nixon and his vice presidential running mate, Gov. Spiro T. Agnew of Maryland, would spend a good portion of their time stumping Pennsylvania.

During Maxwell's absence from his insurance post, his duties will be assumed by A. John Smith, chief deputy commissioner. Shafer said Smith would have authority to rule on any proposed insurance rate revisions.

Bill Collector Shot Dead; Widow Charged

BERWYN, Pa. (AP) — A Philadelphia Electric Co. bill collector just two months from retirement was shot dead and his body dumped in a wooded area of Willistown Township, Chester County.

Police later arrested a 38-year-old Paoli widow and charged her with the slaying. They said they believed the shooting occurred Tuesday during an argument over a delinquent bill.

The victim was Charles Scott, 64, a PE employee for 42 years. He lived in Highland Park.

Mrs. Carol Southworth, whose husband and three of her children were killed in a Chicago fire several years ago, surrendered to police Tuesday night. She was charged with murder and held without bail.

Later her attorney, John Duffy of Paoli, took police to the wooded area where Scott's body was found.

Police said witnesses told them of seeing a man and woman arguing in an auto on a Berwyn parking lot. They reported hearing shots and then the car sped away.

Scott's auto was found on that parking lot later.

Mrs. Southworth has an 8-year-old daughter.

Named President Of Indiana Univ.

HARRISBURG (AP) — Dr. William W. Hassler of Indiana has been elected the new president of Indiana University of Pennsylvania by the college's board of trustees, Gov. Shafer's office announced Wednesday.

He succeeds Dr. Willis E. Pratt, who is to retire on December 31.

The new president has been dean of the college's School of Arts and Sciences since 1963. He is a graduate of Juniata College, receiving master's and doctoral degrees from the University of Pennsylvania.

Dr. Hassler is the author of numerous articles about the Civil War.

Scoutmaster Larry Larson Returns from Farm-City Conference

Larry R. Larson of Russell, Scoutmaster of Troop 26, sponsored by the Methodist Church in Lander, has just returned from participating in a Farm-City Conference at Philmont Scout Training Center, Cimarron, N. M., for which he received a scholarship from the National Council, Boy Scouts of America.

The scholarship for himself and Mrs. Larson was awarded on a basis of outstanding leadership in Scouting, church, civic, and other community organizations.

The National Rural Scouting Committee of the Boy Scouts of America launched this program thirteen years ago as a means of paying tribute to the thousands of service and community minded men across America who give so much of their lives as volunteer leaders to boys through the Scouting movement. Only 144 men from all fifty states received such scholarships.

The purpose of these conferences is to study the newest and most effective program ideas and outreach methods to the changing population characteristics of our times. These scholarships are made available by the Sears-Roebuck Foundation, the National and State Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts, and members of the National Rural Relationships Committee of the Boy Scouts of America.

The goal of Scouting is to prepare boys to achieve their full adult potential as responsible citizens. A trained Scout leader is the key to achieving this goal. The men who have received Philmont Farm City Scholarship recognition have made the Scouting goal effective in the lives of the boys in their respective communities. They represent a million other Scout leaders throughout the nation who are making similar contributions to boys. Their dedication of time and concern underscore again the importance of the volunteer in the social structure of our nation.

Larson has been Scoutmaster of Troop 26 for the past two years. He is a member of the Lander Methodist Church where he has served on the Church Board, a member of the Volunteer Fire Department, and has been vice president of the PTA.

Under Larson's leadership, this troop of 18 scouts carries on an active program of weekly meetings and numerous outdoor activities. The boys attended the Spring Conservation Camporee at Camp Olmsted and spent additional weekends at this camp working on conservation projects. Last year, they devoted a weekend and several additional evenings working on cleaning up Reynolds Run, a campsite used extensively by fishermen. One patrol worked on a stone deflector and made a single log dam in another small stream at the campsite.

This scholarship was provided by the National Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts.

Pennsylvania Democrat, 94, Still Going to Conventions

SLIPPERY ROCK, Pa. (AP) — Do you know who the Democratic candidate for President was in 1880?

"No? Well, no history professor has ever answered that either," snaps 94-year-old Emma Guffey Miller. "It was General Winfield Scott Hancock, a hero of Gettysburg."

Mrs. Miller has been Democratic National Committee woman for Pennsylvania since 1932 and is set to attend another Democratic Convention. And while time has worked some physical changes, it hasn't altered her mind or manner.

"Democrats in Westmoreland County put on a great procession for General Scott," she related in an interview with Frank Matthews, political writer for the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette.

"It was a torchlight procession and my father was chief marshal, and he rode in front on a beautiful bay horse, with a red sash and a silk hat, and our house was on the main street."

Mine Drainage Treatment To Be Tested

HARRISBURG (AP) — A new process is being developed by Bethlehem Steel Corp. for the treatment of coal mine drainage and will be tested within the next few weeks. It was announced here Wednesday.

The announcement was made jointly by Dr. Thomas W. Georges Jr., state health secretary, and Dr. D. J. Blickwede, Bethlehem vice president for research.

"This could be a major technological breakthrough in the treatment of acid mine drainage," Blickwede said in a statement. "The process has been under study for the past eight months."

The Department of Health said the tests will be conducted on a pilot plant scale at Bethlehem Mines Corp. Revloc No. 32 mine near Ebensburg. No date was set.

Meanwhile, the Sanitary Water Board gave Bethlehem a one-year extension of its permit to discharge mine waste into Commonwealth waters.

The extension allows Bethlehem Mines until July 1, 1970, to treat the entire 4.2 million gallons-a-day discharge from its No. 32 mine. At present, the company is treating only half the discharge in a conventional method.

Bethlehem Steel Corp. is to be congratulated on its intense efforts to find a solution to the state's most serious water pollution problem — coal mine drainage, Georges said. "Both the board and the Health Department staff are hoping that the pilot plant project will be successful and lead the way toward cleaner Pennsylvania waters."

"I was waving like mad, and one of the marchers brought me a Roman candle. It was the first Roman candle I had ever seen, and my brother said, 'Hold it high.' But I didn't and it shot balls of fire right across the street into the front of a Republican house."

"I've been shooting at Republicans ever since," Mrs. Miller's biggest battle lately hasn't been with the Republicans. It's been with the youthful supporters of U.S. Sen. Eugene McCarthy.

"You tell those McCarthy people to stop pestering me," she says. "They won't win votes by pestering people."

"I came out for Hubert Humphrey as soon as President Johnson announced his decision against running again. I'm not going to change."

And she probably won't. She hasn't changed her mind since she seconded the nomination of Alfred E. Smith in 1928, began fighting prohibition for real in 1930, seconded the nomination of Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1932, or, for that matter, since she voted for Lyndon B. Johnson in 1960 over the late John F. Kennedy.

Mrs. Miller's political career began in 1874 by virtue of her

Quiet Prevails After Outbreak Of Violence

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Police said quiet prevailed Wednesday in two districts where vandalism and violence flared.

One person was shot while playing volleyball on an outside court and several firebombs were tossed in the East Liberty section. In the city's Homewood section, policemen and buses were stoned.

Eight persons were arrested in Homewood and seven were injured after the violence Tuesday night and Wednesday.

Public Safety Director David Craig said tactical police units would be ready if violence should erupt again, but said this was a normal precaution.

Craig said he was particularly disturbed by the East Liberty incident because Negro community leaders had met shortly before the outbreak in an effort to curb any violence.

Shot in the leg while playing volleyball was Henry Weber, 35, Stanley Blackwell, 23, was shot in the chest. Neither was seriously injured.

A civil rights group called Forever Action Together charged that police reacted to the disturbances and said it would have been avoided if the police had been on duty in the area.

Tom Pryor, an official of the group, said that when police blocked off a street it "served only to create a greater incident and more presence of police."

birth into the highly political Guffey family that centered then at Guffey's Station on the Youghiogheny River.

Back in the "old Yough" days, Mrs. Miller says, the leading families were the Guffeys and the Markels. There were 31 Guffeys of voting age to 28 Markels.

"They were Whigs and we were Jeffersonian Democrats," Mrs. Miller relates, just as if she were there, too.

"One election day one of the Guffeys called to another, 'Get on your horse quick and ride over to Squire Guffey's, because here comes General Markel with a spring wagon load of Markels.'"

"In those days they had to vote out loud, and the squire said to the Markels, 'Stand up and be counted.' Now, you know, I think that it is where that expression came from."

Mrs. Miller attended her first Democratic National Convention in 1924 and was in the thick of a fight to have the party platform condemn the Klu Klux Klan.

She says she'll fly to the 1968 convention. But it won't be like the old days, she says.

"We used to go by special train," she says. "It would start in Philadelphia and pick up delegates and spectators along the way."

"I remember once there was a woman from one of the eastern counties who fainted or had a heart seizure, or something, and somebody asked if anybody had any whiskey."

"Well, a flask came out of every berth. I never laughed as much in my life. That's what prohibition did."

Mrs. Miller spends the spring and summer months at Wolf Creek Farm near Slippery Rock. She acquired the farm in 1920 with her husband, the late Carroll Miller, an engineer.

The rest of her time is spent in Washington where she fights for equal rights through the American Women's Party.

Chase Ends in Death For Two Teen-agers

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A police chase ended in death for two Pittsburgh teen-agers Wednesday.

Gary Keller, 18, and Herbert Angelo Regatusa, 17, were killed when their car crashed into a utility pole on Pennsylvania 28 in Springdale.

Police said the youths were being chased by an East Deer Township patrol car after they were spotted in a car, which had been reported stolen in Tarentum.

Gannon College, Erie, expects to set a new enrollment record this year with an estimated 1,000 students. Enrollment of the school is up approximately 200 from the previous year. Orientation for 400 incoming freshmen will be held Sept. 15-17.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I wish to comment on the letter from "Starvation Diet" — the man whose sex life was terrible. He blamed her and she blamed him.

For ten years my husband and I had the same problem. It was neither frigidity on my part nor clumsiness on his part. It was simply that his attitude toward sex was primitive and mechanical and I felt I was being used to satisfy his animal passions. It took two years of counseling to set us straight.

Sex is the highest form of communicating love between woman and man. It should be an act of giving, for both parties. A woman must feel that she is an object of love and not just a convenient escape valve for releasing sexual impulses.

I urge Mr. Starvation Diet to take some quiet walks and examine his deepest motives. I am willing to bet that if he changes his attitude and approaches his wife with selfless love and takes the time to be gentle and considerate he will find himself graciously received — not rejected. A good sexual relationship can make a marriage heaven. A poor one can make it hell. — ONE WHO HAS KNOWN BOTH

DEAR ONE: Amen.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I recently went to a doctor who ordered me to take some laboratory tests. I was told I'd be notified of the results. One week passed and I heard nothing so I called and asked about the tests. I was informed that they were "in the mail."

Five days elapsed and nothing arrived so I called again. I was told, "The post office must have lost them." I am now mad at the doctor because I think he lied to me. I want to change doctors and have asked for my medical records. I was told, "It is not ethical for a doctor to give a patient medical records."

I discussed this with a friend who is well-versed in medical ethics. He said, "The doctor is right."

Do you think it is fair that I should have to take all those lab tests over just because the doctor doesn't want to give me my medical records? And why is it unethical for a doctor to give them to me? Please explain. — MAT AT CROAKERS

DEAR MAD: It is indeed unethical for a doctor to give a patient his medical records. The reason is obvious. For example, if the physician should recommend the "surgical excision of multiple lipomata" it might frighten the patient to death. Another physician would know that this procedure is no big deal.

Your doctor should, however, furnish you with a report of your lab tests. You have a right to know how the tests turned out. If they were lost in the mail the doctor has an obligation to replace them.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My sister Mazie and her husband have had dinner at our house every Friday for the last six years. This means they have enjoyed 312 free meals over here. We have been to their home for dinner three times. (Once was when my brother-in-law's boss gave him a turkey for Christmas. Another time, my brother-in-law shot a duck. It was too gamy to eat. And once we had a Chinese dinner which they paid us to pick up on the way over.)

Last week an out-of-town aunt was having a serious operation and I offered to take care of her children. Mazie didn't invite my husband over for a single meal. This burned me up. I told my husband I'm through feeding them every Friday. He says Mazie will be mad because they have grown to expect it. How do I unwind a six-year habit? — THE CHUMP

DEAR CHUMP: Find something else to do a few Fridays in a row and announce it well in advance. When you do invite Mazie tell her, "It's your turn next time," and put your dinners on an alternating basis.

Youngsville OES Chapter Honors New District Officer

The Youngsville Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, honored Joan Archibold, the new district deputy grand matron of District 1 B, with a reception recently at the Youngsville Ski Lodge. District 1B consists of ten different chapters.

Also honored was Helen Johnson, Sugar Grove, the appointed member of the grand committee for the coming year. Both were presented with corsages from the program, piano music was offered by Ruth Dahlhausen. Mary Crocker, matron of the Youngsville chapter, introduced Pauline Halfast who opened the program with a "Welcome." The matron then presented the Sweet Adelines, who were followed by the Circle Right Square Dance Club. Gifts from the chapter were presented to Joan Archibold by Wilma Jean Johnson and to Helen Johnson by Ruth Brazelle. After expressions of thanks by both, the matron closed the program with a short poem. Refreshments were served by Lorraine Brooks, chairman, and Carol Sittler, co-chairman with Mildred Clark serving punch and Clole Mead pouring coffee. Table decorations were carried out in blue and white, the chosen colors of the new deputy. The centerpiece was a white milk glass basket filled with blue and white carnations. Sandra Galbraith was in charge of the guest book.

Guests attended from Linesville, Conneautville, Cambridge Springs, Meadville, Titusville, Corry, Warren, Pittsfield and Youngsville. Also present was Donald Archibold, husband of the new deputy.

Berea Lutheran Church 1868-1968

Berea Lutheran Church To Celebrate 100th Anniversary

The Berea Lutheran Church at Wrightsville will be celebrating officially its 100th anniversary on Sunday, September 1, beginning with the 11 o'clock Morning Worship Service. A dinner for the congregation and guests will be held at 1 p.m., followed by a group picture at 3 p.m. The Confirmation and Communion will be at 3:30; followed by dedication of the Educational Building at 4:45 and a coffee hour at 5 p.m.

The church which is located one mile from Wrightsville at the junction of routes 6 and 958, begins its history with the first entry in the church book, dated Ascension Day 1868, and written by the Rev. C. O. Hultgren, pastor of the First Lutheran Church in Jamestown at that time.

The first services were held in a schoolhouse one-fourth mile north of Wrightsville, and it was there the Berea Lutheran congregation was organized 100 years ago. To build a church, was the first thought in every member's mind. They were hoping to purchase a plot of ground from the Charley Wynn property, when John Hagle announced that he would donate an acre and 40 rods of land for a church and cemetery. The church was built thereon and the first church service was held Christmas morning 1869.

In 1870 the congregation voted to become a member of the Augustana Synod and was incorporated at Warren County Court House in 1885.

Some of the bylaws, written in 1871 read — "The church doors shall be closed when the collection is being taken."

"Church dues will be $4.00 for men, $2.00 for women and a half cord of wood from each family per year."

"Each family to be assessed $5.00 a year to pay the song-leader. Boys and girls were to give what they could toward his salary." (Peter Spetz was the first pastor)

The first pastor was Rev. H. O. Lindeblad, and the first secretary was P. A. Spetz, because, according to the records, he was a beautiful writer.

The above notes have been translated from the Swedish records by Emily Danielson.

Clendenning And Friendship Schools

Reunion Is 55th

The 55th annual reunion of the Clendenning and Friendship schools of Elk Township was held August 17 at the Falconer Village Park, Falconer, N. Y. There were twenty schoolmates and two visitors present.

After a delicious picnic lunch, the business meeting was called to order by the President, Harris Johnson. The historian gave an interesting report about when the reunion was started. There were five members that attended in 1913 and 1914.

Two teachers were present this year: Mrs. Viola Putnam of Russell, and Miss Gertrude White of Youngsville. Mr. and Mrs. Paul Nelson were elected for the refreshment committee and Mrs. Lona Scheil chosen for program chairman for 1969.

The program consisted of readings by Miss Gertrude White, Mrs. Will Nelson, Mr. Harris Johnson, Mrs. Gertrude Johnson and Mrs. Paul Nelson.

Communities represented were Jamestown, Falconer, Frewsburg, North Clymer, N. Y., and Warren, Custer City, Youngsville, Russell, Pa.

The 1969 reunion will be held the third Saturday in August at the same place.

Edwina May Anderson Weds Dr. Michael Robert Moldover

The First Unitarian Church on Mt. Curve Drive, Minneapolis, Minn., was the setting for the nuptial service which united in marriage Edwina Mae Anderson and Dr. Michael Robert Moldover. The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. E. R. Anderson of 105 Central avenue, Warren, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Moldover of 3850 Sedgwick avenue, Bronx, N.Y.

The Rev. Richard Perry, pastor of the church, conducted the double ring ceremony in the presence of both families and a few intimate friends. Church decorations included arrangements of white carnations, mums, and snapdragons.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a pale blue silk A-line, street length, jacket dress. The sleeveless dress had a round slashed neckline with frog closures and the bracelet sleeved jacket also fastened with frogs of the same material. A tiara of fresh flowers consisting of stephanotis and miniature white rosebuds completed her ensemble.

Attending the bride was her twin sister, Mrs. Truman W. Stelle of Hyattsville, Md., in a pink princess style gown with bone accessories. Her flowers were a corsage of variegated pink rosebuds.

The groom's best man was his brother, Donald Moldover of New York City.

The mother of the bride wore a blue silk dress with matching accessories and a pink rosebud corsage. The mother of the groom chose gold silk and matching accessories for her ensemble and a corsage of yellow rosebuds.

A reception was held immediately after the ceremony, at the couple's future home with forty guests in attendance. Dr. and Mrs. Moldover left the Kennedy International Airport on August 12 for a European honeymoon. They will be at home after September 9, at 132 Orlin avenue S.E., Minneapolis, Minn.

The bride has a Bachelor of Science degree in nursing from St. Olaf College in Northfield, Minn., and a Master of Science degree in Public Health Nursing from the University of Minnesota. She is presently a staff member of the Minneapolis Combined Nursing Services.

The groom has a Bachelor of Science degree from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, N.Y., and a Master of Science degree in Physics from Stanford University of Palo Alto, Calif., and a PhD in Physics from the same university. He is now a faculty member of the Physics Department at the University of Minnesota.

Mr. and Mrs. Moldover, parents of the groom, hosted the rehearsal dinner at Charlie's Cafe Exceptionale in Minneapolis.

Stanford-Johnson Families

Have Reunion

On Sunday, August 18, sixty-seven descendants of the Stanford and Matilda Johnson families gathered for their second annual reunion at Ben White's barn in Starbuck. Well filled baskets provided the delicious dinner enjoyed by all.

Later in the afternoon, president Richard Brown called the business meeting to order. Minutes of last year's gathering were read from a book sent in by secretary Marilyn Miller who was unable to be present.

All officers were re-elected and will serve next year's reunion at the same place, on the third Sunday of August. Late in the afternoon the guests departed thanking the Whites for their hospitality and all anticipating future gatherings.

Mary Cox And Alfred White II Married In Ludlow Church

Miss Mary Cox and Mr. Alfred White II were married Saturday, August 17, in Moriah Lutheran Church, Ludlow, Pa. The double ring ceremony was performed at 3 p.m. by the Rev. Mallard C. Nelson, pastor of Tabor Lutheran Church in Kane, Pa.

The bride is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Walter Cox and sister of John W. Cox, who gave her away. Her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred White of Sharon, Pa. Matron of honor was Mrs. John Paup of Kane, Pa., and best man was the groom's father.

A catered reception was held in the Cox home following the ceremony. Out of town guests included: Mr. and Mrs. George Smith and Miss Dorothy Peterson of Lakahurst, N. J.; Mrs. Everett Nelson, East Orange, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. Alfred White of Sharon, Pa.; Mrs. Gilda Lemmer of Long Branch, N. J.; Miss Josephine Ruggieri of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Larry Williams of Rochester, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. John Paup, Kane, Pa.; Miss Judy Laufenburger of Warren. The bride attended Thiel College and the groom will be employed by the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture in Winter Haven, Florida, where they will reside.

October Wedding Date Set

DIANNE LOUISE MILLER (Kotod Studio)

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Miller of RD 1, Clarendon, announce the engagement of their only daughter, Dianne Louise, to Thomas Wayne Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Anderson of 91 Fairmount avenue, Jamestown, N.Y.

The wedding is being planned for October 12.

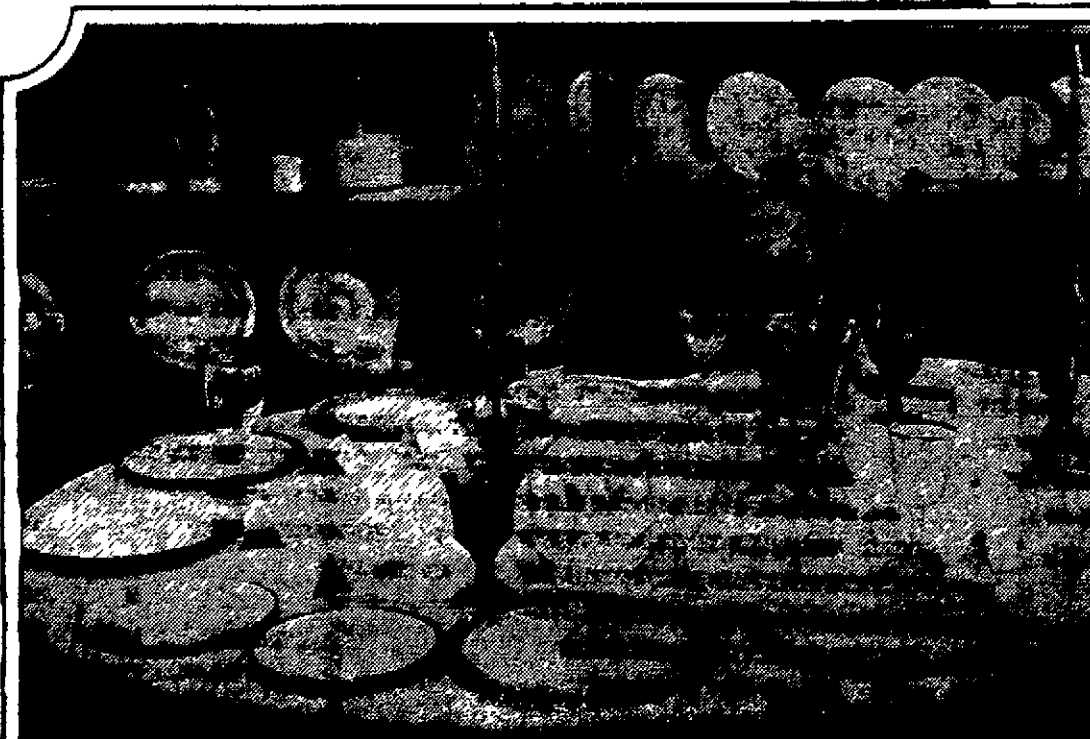

Miss Miller, a graduate of Warren Area High School, class of 1967, is now employed by the New Process Company. Her fiancé, a 1964 graduate of Jamestown High School, served two years in the U.S. Army, and attended Jamestown Community College. He is now employed with the Dahlstrom's Manufacturing Corp., Jamestown.

Contrary to common belief, rabbits and hares are not the same animal. Rabbits are born blind, naked and in a covered nest. Hares are born with eyes open, fully furred, in above-ground depressions and generally move away from the birth point within the first 24 hours.

LCW Delegate Returns From Chicago Convention

Mrs. Carl F. Ellason of Sheffield has returned from the Third Triennial Convention of Lutheran Church Women in Chicago, Ill., where she was told "building community doesn't mean a lot of talk, it means a lot of work."

Mrs. Ellason is president of the Lutheran Church Women of the Western Pennsylvania-West Virginia Synod of the Lutheran Church in America.

Theme for the August convention of the 277,000-member official auxiliary of the Lutheran Church in America was "Chosen for Life Together." "If we think of the theme of the convention, we see the theological reasons for our desire to be a part of councils of churches," said the Rev. Dr. Robert J. Marshall, newly-elected president of the LCA and for the past six years president of the Illinois Synod of the LCA. "Crisis draws us together with others as a means of mobilizing maximum strength to overcome enormous problems," he said. Speaking to the 376 delegates assembled at the convention was Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman, an active Lutheran layman who had as his topic, "It's Your Revolution Too!" In addition to hearing speakers, the women mapped plans for LCW for the coming triennial. They elected Mrs. Bernard Spong of New York City president and approved a $1.1 million annual gift to the LCA of which $660,000 will be provided for the total outreach of the church and $440,000 for specific ministries as developed by the boards and commissions of the LCA.

Speaking with Secretary Freeman during the opening session on "Communities in Which We Live" were the Rev. Dr. Beryl B. Mauser, program director of Continuing education of clergymen, West Virginia University of Morgantown, Va.; the Rev. Dr. Daisuke Kitagawa, of New York, N.Y., executive secretary of College and University Work of the Episcopal Church; the Rev. Dr. J. Heiner, associate professor of Systematic Theology, Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago; and the Rev. Dr. Hagan Staack, professor of religion at Muhlenberg College, Allentown, Pa. Speaking on "Lutherans Build Community Amid Change" were representatives of various LCA boards and agencies including the Rev. Dr. Donald L. Houser, executive secretary of the Board of American Missions; the Rev. Dr. Carl E. Thomas, executive secretary of the Board of Social Ministry; the Rev. Dr. W. Kent Gilbert, executive secretary of the Board of Parish Education; the Rev. Lawrence E. Nelson, director of the Commission on Youth

Ministry, and the Rev. Antoni R. Thumhart Jr., special projects and assignments director of the Commission on Evangelism. An evening of song was led by John Ylvisaker in "Music Builds Community." Community on an international level was discussed by Dr. Julia J. Henderson, associate commissioner and director for technical cooperation, United Nations; the Rev. Norman H. Nuding, secretary for missionary personnel, Board of World Missions, and Mrs. G. Morris Smith, executive secretary of the Vellore Christian Medical College Board, New York, N.Y. The closing topic was "We Rejoice in Hope," and the Rev. Dr. Edmund A. Stelmie, Brown professor of homiletics, Union Theological Seminary, New York City and speaker for the Lutheran Series of the Protestant Hour. Presiding at the convention was Mrs. E. G. Price of Pittsburgh, Pa., who has been president of the LCW since 1962 and was recently elected to the LCA Executive Council.

CHERYL ANN JOHNSON
(Kofod Studio)

Engaged

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Johnson of 507 Jackson Run road, announce the engagement of their daughter, Cheryl Ann, to Ronald A. Bloom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Bloom of 311 Jackson avenue.

The bride-elect is a 1967 graduate of Warren Area High School and is employed at the New Process Company. Mr. Bloom, a 1964 graduate of Warren Area High School, served two years in the United States Army, and is presently employed at Struthers Wells Corporation. He will enter the Triangle School of Drafting in Pittsburgh this September.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Hints From Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

My refrigerator defrosts automatically, but my crispers get too much moisture in them so that my lettuce, cucumbers, fruits, etc., were spoiling.

I bought a small package of sponges and use three in each crisper.

They absorb most of the moisture, and my lettuce, etc., will now keep fresh (without spoilage) for two weeks or more.

The sponges can be removed and washed when necessary.

Mrs. M. Harris

I just lined mine with a thin piece of foam rubber. Fantastic!

YOU are a honeybear, Mrs. Harris.

Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Before going on a long car trip I put a crib mattress and quilts on the back seat of the car for my two small children.

I build up the back car floor with suitcases so they're about even with the seat and spread out the mattress and quilts.

The children can play, sleep and be comfortable. Also see out the window without having to stand up

Elaine

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

DEAR HELOISE:

Did you ever think you had come to the point of no return?

Wondering

You can well bet your last pair of shoes I have . . . haven't we all?

Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Many of us have short zippers lying around but not long ones. (After all, they cost quite a bit.)

Twice now I've had occasion to put in a long zipper and had none. I used two short ones with the opening of each facing the other. When both zippers are opened, the full length of the two zippers is open.

I've used these on cot mattress covers, covers for twin-size foam mattresses, etc., as these can be folded and inserted in a small opening.

AN AP NEWS ANALYSIS

World Communism May Never Recover from Shock

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

A mighty Communist power, by invading a weak Communist state, has administered to the followers of Lenin a shock from which they may never fully recover.

There is no real precedent for the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia. Not even the Hungarian invasion of 1956 was quite the same, for at that time the Russians could claim that an anti-Communist regime had taken over and that Hungary was being wrenched from the Soviet-dominated alliance in Eastern Europe.

This time, a Communist party and Communist government still were in control in Czechoslovakia. They were still telling the world of their loyalty in general to the Warsaw Pact and to the basic "principles of socialism" espoused by the Kremlin. All the Czechoslovak Communists wanted to do was to reform their regime within the framework of Communist party rule.

The shock of the invasion has been underscored by the reaction of Communists abroad.

"It is incomprehensible that one Socialist state can encroach upon the freedom and sovereignty of another Socialist state," declared an outraged—and possibly frightened—Nicolae Ceausescu, whose Romania has retained tight party rule but tended to go its own way in foreign affairs.

Tito was no less appalled. The Yugoslav president told the world that "the entry into Czechoslovakia of foreign military units without invitation or approval of the legitimate government" would have "far-reaching and very negative consequences for the whole world revolutionary movement."

Those, from two Communist leaders, were condemnations of a party and government supposed to be the fountainhead of all Communist wisdom. There will be much more.

For the French Communists, Czechoslovakia will seem like disaster. The French party, long the most influential in Europe, came through a trying time in the recent crisis in France. It has been trying to make itself appear in the role of champion of freedoms and popular reforms.

The Italian party leadership will be outraged. It had strongly supported Alexander Dubcek, the party chief in Prague. To the Italian Communists, the invasion will be justification of their stand that "polycentrism" is inevitable, that there can no longer be just one single, infallible source of authority in the Communist world.

The Chinese Communists will be delighted. What happened signals the end of a Czechoslovak regime considered "bourgeois" by the Maoists, and it also embarrasses the Russians, whom Peking pillories as having brought about Communist disunity through the Kremlin's own "revisionism."

The Russians themselves have come up with a questionable justification of their invasion.

The Soviet news agency, Tass, broadcast what it called an appeal by "a group of members" of the Czechoslovak party's Central Committee. According to this appeal, the current leaders of the Czechoslovak party had to be overthrown not because they were reformers but because they threatened the reform movement begun last January. Evidently, the idea is that the Dubcek followers did this by permitting Czechoslovaks to criticize the Russians. But the record shows that all along, the Kremlin was alarmed by the reform movement itself.

Many Communists around the world are not going to buy that excuse. They still will see the invasion as the violation of one Communist state by the enormous armed might of other Communist states led by the Soviet Union. The result is going to be more splits and even less unity than before in a movement already ripped by dissensions.

This was easily predictable in the event of an invasion. Why, then, did the Russians go ahead with it?

Moscow evidently considered the blow to the Communist world front a lesser evil, compared with what the example of Czechoslovakia might produce. Czechoslovakia showed that a party in control could voluntarily surrender some of its power, and this was considered a threat to all other ruling parties, including the Soviet party itself, already wrestling with internal ferment.

Czechoslovak intellectuals apparently had become intoxicated with the idea that they could, after 20 years of silence, express opinions free of censorship. The opinions included many denouncing the role of the Russians in Czechoslovakia in those two decades. To Moscow, this meant that Czechoslovakia might eventually be persuaded to turn Westward.

Czechoslovakia is strategically important as an outpost. This factor, plus the military invasion, tend to bolster the idea that military men in Moscow now wield enormous power.

Thus, what happened in Czechoslovakia, apart from creating a new crisis for the world of communism, eventually may cause an explosion in the Soviet Union, in a showdown between the doves who had argued caution plus persuasion and the hawks who urged action. With the hawks in controlling positions, some top members of the Soviet leadership themselves may be in peril.

Scorns Kinzua

An area newspaper reports the story of a 14-year-old who somewhat less than enthusiastic about motor trips but all along when he set out with his family for Kinzua. At the end of the trail the boy demanded, "Where are the animals?" Told there were no animals, the young fellow gave his parents a scornful: "I thought you said this was Kinzoo."
